GenNext has grown from a small group of like-minded people to a movement that is changing our generation. It gives people the opportunity to give back, get involved and make a real impact. Being a part of this has shown me that the sky's the limit when we work together.

– Maly Bun-Lebert

The GenNext Cabinet consists of seven super-volunteers committed to changing lives locally through leadership of the GenNext initiatives. The Cabinet is responsible to the United Way Board of Directors through the CEO.

GenNext is impact
GenNext's mission is to mobilize the emerging generation to make a positive impact in our community.

Since 2009, GenNext has been working to engage the up-and-coming leaders and activists in our region through giving, volunteering and action. By showing our region the impact of working together to remove barriers and address social issues in London, Elgin and Middlesex counties, GenNext is helping local people build their best life.

When you show someone the impact of their support—when you help them really understand how they can make a difference—you change them forever.

– Jennifer Miller

Changing mindsets
Jennifer Miller is a change champion. As Co-Chair of the GIVE Committee for the United Way GenNext Cabinet and GenNext Ambassador at her workplace, Sifton Properties, she has worked hard to change the mindset around personal giving at her workplace and in the community.

For Jennifer, the key to recruiting new supporters is showing the impact donations have when invested through United Way.

"United Way funds over 92 programs at 54 different agencies in our community, all working to help people and provide access to opportunity. That's an amazing thing, but it doesn't seem to be common knowledge in my generation."

When Jennifer was approached to co-chair the United Way campaign at Sifton, she saw the opportunity she had been looking for to change misconceptions and help even more people in need.

Using her passion for helping others as a catalyst, Jennifer connected with colleagues, utilized her network, and rallied GenNexters from across the community to change mindsets and share the truth about the impact of giving locally. Thanks to Jennifer and the GenNext GIVE Committee for their exceptional leadership in growing the GenNext Level program.
GENNEXT IS IMPACT

GenNext’s mission is to mobilize the emerging generation to make a positive impact in our community.

Since 2009, GenNext has been working to engage the up-and-coming leaders and activists in our region through giving, volunteering and action. By showing our region the impact of working together to remove barriers and address social issues in London, Elgin and Middlesex counties, GenNext is helping local people build their best life.

33 NEW GENNEXTLEVEL DONORS IN 2019

GenNext has grown from a small group of like-minded people to a movement that is changing our generation. It gives people the opportunity to give back, get involved and make a real impact. Being a part of this has shown me that the sky’s the limit when we work together.

— Maly Bun-Lebert

THE GENNEXT CABINET

consists of seven super-volunteers committed to changing lives locally through leadership of the GenNext initiatives. The Cabinet is responsible to the United Way Board of Directors through the CEO.

JENNIFER MILLER

Changing mindsets

Jennifer Miller is a change champion. As Co-Chair of the GIVE Committee for the United Way GenNext Cabinet and GenNext Ambassador at her workplace, Sifton Properties, she has worked hard to change the mindset around personal giving at her workplace and in the community.

For Jennifer, the key to recruiting new supporters is showing the impact donations have when invested through United Way.

“United Way funds over 92 programs at 54 different agencies in our community, all working to help people and provide access to opportunity. That’s an amazing thing, but it doesn’t seem to be common knowledge in my generation.”

When Jennifer was approached to co-chair the United Way campaign at Sifton, she saw the opportunity she had been looking for to change misconceptions and help even more people in need.

“ When you show someone the impact of their support—when you help them really understand how they can make a difference—you change them forever.

Using her passion for helping others as a catalyst, Jennifer connected with colleagues, utilized her network, and rallied GenNexters from across the community to change mindsets and share the truth about the impact of giving locally. Thanks to Jennifer and the GenNext GIVE Committee for their exceptional leadership in growing the GenNext Level program.
Forest City Sport & Social Club generously sponsored the 2018/19 Pop-Up Volunteering program, including volunteer opportunities at Neighbourhood Resource Association of Westminster Park, LUSO Community Services and Glen Cairn Community Resource Centre.

The dynamic team of DoGooders from General Dynamics Land Systems – Canada serving breakfast to young people in need at LUSO Community Services.

Honour Roll - GenNextLevel

Leaders who step up to improve lives locally

GENNEXTLEVEL DONORS GAVE

$53,971 in 2018

25 workplaces have a GenNext program.

1 in 5 people across our region used a United Way funded program or service last year.

Derek Gelinas, General Dynamics Land Systems – Canada at this year’s GenNextLevel networking event.
Ten years ago, I wanted to be a part of United Way’s GenNext, a new initiative connecting the up-and-coming generation to their community. Back then, I knew that the combined support of all generations was more important than ever before. It still is today.

— Kyla Woodcock, Founder
Forest City Sport & Social Club
GenNext has grown from a small group of like-minded people to a movement that is changing our generation. It gives people the opportunity to give back, get involved and make a real impact. Being a part of this has shown me that the sky's the limit when we work together.

— Maly Bun-Lebert

The GenNext Cabinet consists of seven super-volunteers committed to changing lives locally through leadership of the GenNext initiatives. The Cabinet is responsible to the United Way Board of Directors through the CEO.

Jennifer Miller is a change champion. As Co-Chair of the GIVE Committee for the United Way GenNext Cabinet and GenNext Ambassador at her workplace, Sifton Properties, she has worked hard to change the mindset around personal giving at her workplace and in the community.

For Jennifer, the key to recruiting new supporters is showing the impact donations have when invested through United Way.

"United Way funds over 92 programs at 54 different agencies in our community, all working to help people and provide access to opportunity. That's an amazing thing, but it doesn't seem to be common knowledge in my generation."

When Jennifer was approached to co-chair the United Way campaign at Sifton, she saw the opportunity she had been looking for to change misconceptions and help even more people in need.

Using her passion for helping others as a catalyst, Jennifer connected with colleagues, utilized her network, and rallied GenNexters from across the community to change mindsets and share the truth about the impact of giving locally. Thanks to Jennifer and the GenNext GIVE Committee for their exceptional leadership in growing the GenNext Level program.

GenNext is impact

GenNext’s mission is to mobilize the emerging generation to make a positive impact in our community. Since 2009, GenNext has been working to engage the up-and-coming leaders and activists in our region through giving, volunteering and action. By showing our region the impact of working together to remove barriers and address social issues in London, Elgin and Middlesex counties, GenNext is helping local people build their best life.

When you show someone the impact of their support—when you help them really understand how they can make a difference—you change them forever.